

The best prescription for pain may be the one that's never written.

Your pediatrician can suggest a number of options for managing your child's pain from a sports injury. And most of these are not opioids. Talk to your doctor and find out which pain management approach is best.